Laptop screen size in tutorial rooms

Sometimes your laptop’s screen resolution will be different from the setting on the projector. This means what you see on the monitor won’t “fit” the projected display correctly, resulting in portions disappearing off to the side of the screen.

To fix this, decrease your screen resolution. First, right click on the desktop and select Properties.

Now click on the slider for Screen resolution and drag it left to a lower setting. 1024x768 is a good setting which should display properly on all the projectors.