Master of Professional Accounting

UWA’s Master of Professional Accounting is a specialist degree, designed to equip you with an in-depth knowledge of accounting and prepare you for professional practice.

This course is ideal for non-accounting graduates wishing to change career direction, and is accredited by CPA Australia, Chartered Accountants Australia and New Zealand, and the Institute of Public Accountants.

The Master of Professional Accounting provides training in the technical aspects of accounting and develops skills in related disciplines such as finance, taxation, auditing and management. You will also develop a number of non-technical skills such as critical analysis, problem solving, teamwork and communication.

Accounting graduates pursue successful careers in fields such as financial reporting, management accounting, accounting information systems, auditing, taxation and financial management, and also provide business advisory services in professional practice, commerce, industry and government.

Student profile

“The Master of Professional Accounting is the perfect course for postgraduates wishing to specialise in the accounting industry. Apart from the fact that it provides for accreditation by three professional bodies upon completion, I like the emphasis on the practical aspects of accounting in the course. Elective units in the course give me flexibility in the disciplines I wish to explore, and provide a breadth of study to the course.”

Jasmine Chan
Master of Professional Accounting
Do you want to build your skills in project management, and focus on improving quality, workflow management, processes and systems?

Undertaking postgraduate studies in Business Information and Logistics Management (BILM) will develop your ability to work with IT teams to improve operations, and improve your capacity to oversee a portfolio of strategic projects.

You will develop and expand your skills to manage IT infrastructure projects, determine enterprise systems requirements, analyse organisational data for business intelligence, lead information systems strategies, manage supply chains, and apply emerging technologies across the enterprise.

A major focus of the Master of Business Information and Logistics Management is developing your ability to work with IT teams to improve operations. For example, the unit Project Management will develop your capacity to oversee a portfolio of strategic projects. Topics include project creation and planning; scheduling, network analysis and resource management; control of projects during their development and execution phases; organising the project team; and benefits realisation. You will be able to apply project management skills, tools and techniques in a realistic setting, making use of standard project management software.

Graduates are employed in both the private and public sectors taking on a variety of roles including Business Analyst, Logistics Manager, Project Manager and Information Manager.

Master of Business Information and Logistics Management

The MBILM consists of various core and option units. Full course details can be found at: studyat.uwa.edu.au/m/business-info-mgt

Graduate Certificate in Business Information and Logistics Management

Consisting of four units, this course is offered part-time and can serve as an entry point into the Master of Business Information and Logistics Management or Master of Commerce (subject to students achieving a weighted average mark of at least 65%).

Are you looking to develop a broad range of high-level business skills?

Master of Commerce

UWA’s Master of Commerce is ideal for recent graduates seeking to develop further expertise to pursue careers in business.

It is suited both to graduates with a non-business degree seeking a postgraduate qualification in business, as well as to business graduates wanting to add new area(s) of specialisation to their skill set.

As a Master of Commerce student, you will complete core units in ethics, economics, financial accounting, global business, management, and marketing.

In addition, the Master of Commerce gives you the scope to specialise in:
- Accounting
- Business Information and Logistics Management
- Employment Relations
- Finance
- Human Resource Management
- Marketing

The flexible course structure gives you the choice of combining two specialisations, completing more extensive study in one specialisation, or combining one specialisation with an array of electives from across the other specialisations.

Career opportunities are vast and depend on your choice of specialisation. The flexible structure enables you to design the course to suit your career interests.

Graduate Certificate in Commerce

This Graduate Certificate gives you the opportunity to choose four units from topics in accounting, economics, employment relations, finance, human resources, management and marketing.

You will gain knowledge to plan and manage the co-ordination of resources within and across business functions; effectively participate in and contribute to business projects; and to analyse and solve business problems as they arise.

This course is designed for students with a non-business background and can serve as an entry point into the Master of Commerce or another master’s course in Accounting, Applied Finance, Business Information Management, Human Resources and Employment Relations, or Marketing (subject to students achieving a weighted average mark of at least 65%).
Do you want to pursue a career as an economic researcher and decision maker?

Master of Economics

The Master of Economics includes studies in international economics (international finance and trade), public economics (taxation, government spending), development economics (the transition from poverty) and environmental economics.

You will join a dynamic study environment, with UWA’s Economics discipline hosting a large number of international visiting experts and guest lecturers. For more than two decades, UWA has been a partner in the innovative PhD Conference in Economics and Business, which has welcomed 600 students from major universities around the world.

Further, the annual Shann Memorial Lecture invites a prominent economist to deliver a presentation in the area of economics and finance. Recent presenters have included Dr Philip Lowe, Deputy Governor of the Reserve Bank of Australia (RBA) and Glenn Stevens, Governor, RBA.

Graduates can expect to find work in government agencies at the local, state and federal levels, as well as opportunities in the private sector, including banks, consultancy companies, international agencies, insurance companies and the finance industry.

“I had an amazing experience in Perth and UWA lived up to its reputation of being a university of high academic standard. Perth is a fantastic city with access to some of the world’s best beaches.

I completed a Master of Economics at the UWA Business School and today I work as a financial analyst at one of Scandinavia’s major banks. Acquisition and leveraged finance is my focus area and I get to use the analytical framework that I developed at UWA. My specialisation in mathematics and econometrics proved to be a competitive edge when applying for analyst positions.”

Emma Stefanson
Master of Economics
Master of Applied Finance

The Master of Applied Finance is a course with a practical emphasis designed for those wishing to work in the finance sector.

The curriculum complements the Chartered Financial Analyst (CFA) program, with topics including risk management, capital markets, and international finance. Candidates preparing for the CFA qualification are encouraged to enrol in the Master of Applied Finance as a preparatory course.

Finance graduates are in demand across a range of industry sectors such as consulting, corporate finance, financial planning, financial risk management, funds management, insurance, and investment banking.

Major employers include firms such as Deloitte, EY, KPMG and PricewaterhouseCoopers, investment banks such UBS and Macquarie Group, private equity firms, and superannuation fund managers.

Further information: studyat.uwa.edu.au/m/appl-finance

Graduate Certificate in Finance

This is a foundational course for students wishing to advance their knowledge of applied finance. You will learn to apply technical knowledge and skills to a variety of finance problems, such as capital investment decisions, investment analysis, and the management of option portfolios.

This course can serve as an entry point into the Master of Applied Finance or Master of Commerce (subject to students achieving a weighted average mark of at least 65%).

“I am consistently presented with the latest, cutting-edge research and current employment issues. I believe that my studies at UWA will enable me to reach the executive level of Human Resource Management.

Moving from Melbourne a few months before beginning my course, I have met the most wonderful people at UWA and have created a new network of friends and colleagues. Studying at UWA has been key to enabling me to settle into the gorgeous Perth lifestyle.”

Rebecca Goodall
Master of Human Resources and Employment Relations

Human Resources and Employment Relations

Master of Human Resources and Employment Relations

The Master of Human Resources and Employment Relations (HRER) provides you with the specialist knowledge and expertise to work in human resource management or related fields such as industrial relations, recruitment, employee development or human resources planning.

Topics include broad introductory units in HRER, together with specialised units in areas such as assessment and selection, strategic human resource management, negotiation, managing workplace diversity, and international employment relations.

Our graduates are employed in all areas of the private and public sectors in an array of jobs. Many work in general human resources managerial and consulting roles, while others are employed in more specialised positions in policy development, industrial relations, recruitment and assessment, and equal opportunity.

Further information: studyat.uwa.edu.au/m/hr-relations

Graduate Certificate in Human Resources and Employment Relations

This course introduces you to key concepts and theories of employment relations and human resource management. You will study the socio-economic dynamics of the employment relationship and organisations involved in employment relations; leadership and organisational behaviour; and the concepts that underpin contemporary human resource management.

This course can serve as an entry point into the Master of Human Resources and Employment Relations or Master of Commerce (subject to students achieving a weighted average mark of at least 65%).
Public Policy

Do you want to lead the way in creating a better world?

Master of Public Policy

The Master of Public Policy will give you a multi-disciplinary understanding of the role of government in economic activity and public policy decision making.

The course focuses on how government interacts with the economy and society. Topics include: economic growth, stability, taxation, infrastructure provision, regulation, health, defence, education, and social security.

The Master of Public Policy is designed to nurture future leaders of government, non-profit, and private sector organisations that are aimed at pursuing the public interest. Graduates may be employed as public policy analysts (either in economics or public administration and governance), as well as managers in public sector departments and agencies.

Students may choose to complete one or both of the following specialisations:
- Economics
- Public Administration and Governance

Economics specialisation

The Economics specialisation is designed for students who want to enhance their ability to apply economic solutions to a wide range of public policy issues.

It integrates both theory and applications to develop skills that are essential in any policy-making position. It equips students with a strong academic foundation to their work, and the critical knowledge and skills for economic decision-making.

Public Administration and Governance specialisation

The Public Administration and Governance specialisation prepares students to become future leaders of government, non-profit, and private sector organisations that are aimed at pursuing the public interest.

It integrates theory and practice to enhance knowledge and develop skills essential to a managerial career in the public sector. It equips students with a strong academic foundation to their work, and the critical knowledge and skills for managing and leading organisations.

Note: This course is pending University approval to commence in July 2017.
Master of Marketing

The Master of Marketing equips you with the strategic knowledge and practical skills that are highly sought after by business. You may choose to study topics including: electronic marketing, global marketing strategy, integrated marketing communications and marketing research.

Marketing students at UWA have the opportunity to undertake projects for real-life organisations, and have previously worked with companies including Coles, Google, Microsoft, Rio Tinto, Tourism WA, Transperth, and Westpac.

Roles open to Marketing graduates include: advertising executive, brand co-ordinator, creative executive, electronic commerce co-ordinator, events co-ordinator, marketing co-ordinator, market researcher, public relations officer, and sales manager.

Further information: studyat.uwa.edu.au/m/marketing

Graduate Certificate in Marketing

This course offers an introduction to core aspects of marketing, with topics including consumer behaviour, integrated marketing communications and marketing research. You will acquire the core knowledge and practical skills that are critical for a career in marketing, or a career which relates to customer relationships.

This course can serve as an entry point into the Master of Marketing or Master of Commerce (subject to students achieving a weighted average mark of at least 65%).

“Choosing to study a Master of Marketing at UWA provided me with countless networking and career development opportunities.

Being from a marketing background, I wanted to broaden my understanding of marketing as a whole as well as to be able to think and function more strategically.

The Master of Marketing allowed me to not only enhance my analytical ability but also to improve my communication skills tremendously.”

Notes
- !Duration Duration may vary if students receive credit for prior learning; refer to detailed course duration information below.
- !Course This course is pending University approval.

Course durations
The indicated Masters courses consist of two years of full-time study, or the equivalent in part-time study. Students with an undergraduate degree in a related area of study may be eligible to receive credit and may be able to complete the course in 1.5 years of full-time study, or the equivalent in part-time study. For further information, contact the Business School’s Student Centre (see page 15).

Availability
The majority of courses are available in both full-time and part-time study modes. In addition, most courses are available to both Australian and international students. All graduate certificates (with the exception of the Graduate Certificates in Business and in Commerce) are available to domestic students only.
Higher degrees by research

A range of master’s by research and doctorate degrees are available to students wishing to pursue a research-intensive postgraduate qualification.

Master of Philosophy (Research)
This is a program of independent, supervised research that can be taken in any discipline for which appropriate supervision is available, and is assessed solely on the basis of a thesis.

Doctor of Philosophy (PhD)
The PhD is a program of independent, supervised research that is assessed solely on the basis of a thesis that is examined externally. A PhD thesis must be a substantial and original contribution to scholarship, demonstrating mastery of the subject of interest as well as an advance in that field of knowledge.

Students may also choose to research an interdisciplinary topic, jointly supervised by the UWA Business School and another faculty.

Doctor of Business Administration
The Doctor of Business Administration (DBA) is a professional doctorate designed for research-oriented individuals working in management positions in business, public service and not-for-profit organisations. The degree enhances students’ research skills and develops their independent and critical thinking so they can contribute state-of-the-art knowledge through research in their chosen fields.

The next intake for the DBA will be in January 2018. For further information, contact research-business@uwa.edu.au.

Further information
For more information on higher degrees by research, see studyat.uwa.edu.au/courses-and-careers/postgraduate

Course fees (coursework)
UWA’s Unit Costs website (see unitcosts.uwa.edu.au) contains details of the fees payable for each unit and course. The fee is based on the student’s final choice of units and fees will increase on an annual basis.

Australian citizens and humanitarian visa holders have access to a deferred payment loan scheme called FEE-HELP. You may also wish to approach your employer for financial support.

Course fees (research)
Australian and New Zealand citizens and permanent residents are exempt from paying a contribution toward the cost of their research courses if UWA provides them with a Research Training Scheme place. This exemption applies for up to four years full-time equivalent study for a doctorate by research and two years full-time equivalent study for a master’s by research.

All international students at UWA must pay tuition fees for research or coursework programs, unless they have a scholarship that covers the fees.

For more information, visit studyat.uwa.edu.au/postgraduate/researchfees
